

Where to Start

Learning how to read is such a huge step. Where do you start?

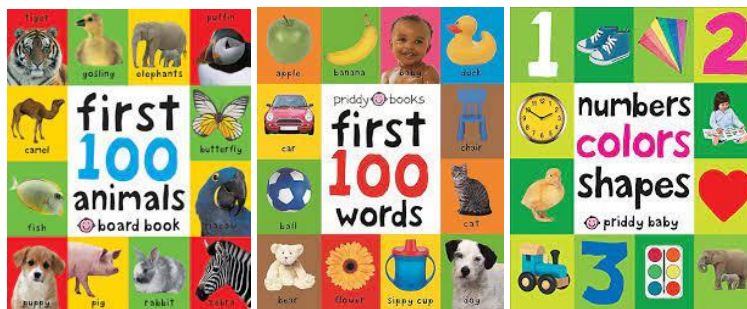

Dick and Jane Series

How did Mrs. Molly learn how to read? Dick and Jane!!! These are the perfect books to begin your child's journey!

BOB books

Another great series and we have all the beginner sets! Just like Dick and Jane you begin with one word per page and then slowly build up to full sentences!

If you are wanting to expand your child's vocabulary then these books are a good choice. They are board books and definitely for the younger crowd, but very cute and will help kids recognize a lot of words.

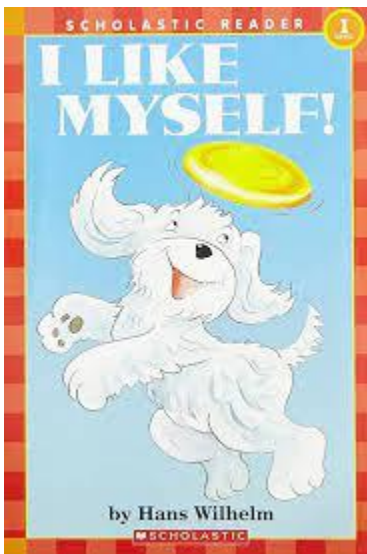

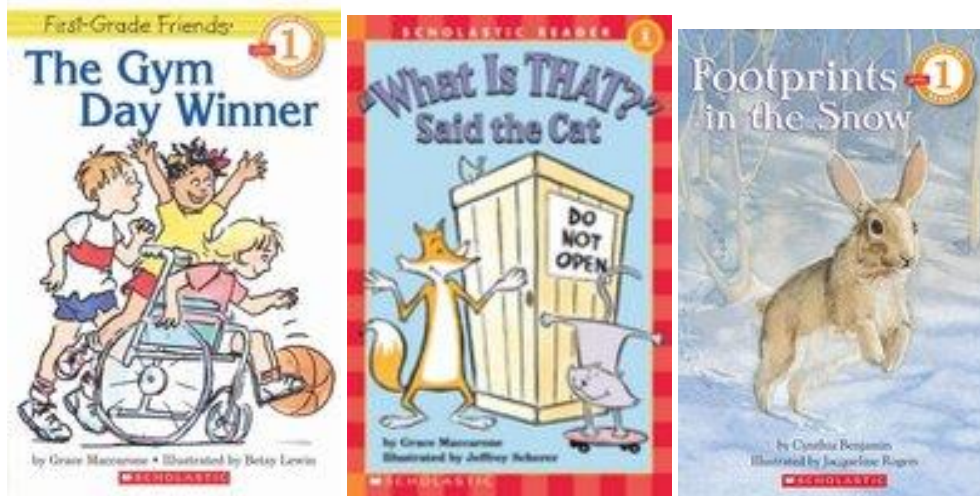

Leap Frog Books

These books under LEA in our early reader section are great when it comes to introducing certain vowel sounds to kids. For example: short vowels, short i, short a, short u

Next Step

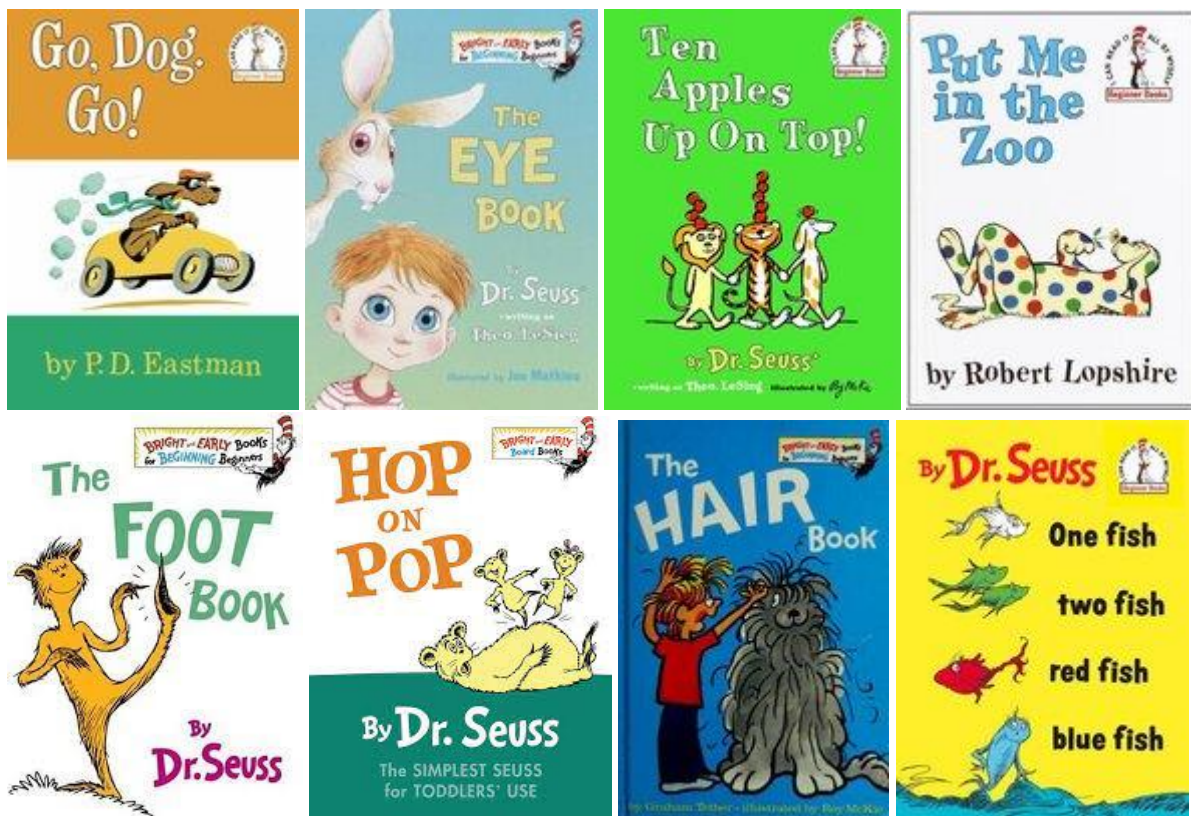

For this next step, check out the books that say that they are Level 1. Not all are created equal, but this is still a good rule to start with!

Hello Reader! Level 1

These books have a light blue spine with a yellow stripe. They mostly exist at MAC. First-Grade Friends is a great series to begin with!

Dr. Seuss anyone??? This is an exact list made by me, Mrs. Molly, of the best beginners.
